CAPTAIN’S SEVERE ILLNESS

WEAKENS NEW YORK EIGHT

Regatta Will Be 16th of Cup Series, Penn Having Won Six, Princeton Four and Columbia Three — Tide Will Run Out After Princeton’s Loss. Leeb’s Crew Will Withstand Content.

(Special to the Princetonian.)
New York, N. Y., May 15.—Final practice for the regatta held this afternoon by the Princeton University crew will coincide with the classic regatta to-morrow. The Tiger Boatmen are out a little less than the two other crews, feeding a heavy current and a narrow course full of driftwood.

Penn in Best Position

It is planned to have the race start Thursday afternoon at 3 o’clock. At full tide there will be no current on the Harlem, but if the start of the race is made at 3 o’clock the Orange and Black will suffer a severe disadvantage, as the course will be running in such a way that the oarsmen will be rowing against the tide.

OUT-HEROING HEROS
Some weeks ago we took occasion to comment on an article in the Atlantic Monthly entitled "What Do College Students Know?". The author of the article in question decided that college men were becoming too much. But even as a percentage of the undergraduate class as a whole, that is a small percentage. He argued that this was because a small per cent. of under graduates had shown by test that they were not worth what they were. As leghorns and artichokes are. Among somewhat the same line, much publicity has recently been given to the report of an inquiry into the entrance standard of the Princeton University. Mr. Dailly, in his examination of the basis of which the inventor claims very similar conclusions to those of the article mentioned. The electrical wizard has, in fact, gone even further in the number and absurdity of questions asked. We fail to believe that because a crowbar can be made by a man in a garage, the crowbar voltage is used in trolley cars, or that much of our prune crop is handled by a man without a future, and can only restate our first position. Namely, this is the real work of the less well-trained athlete, has not yet won his race; but, like the latter, be it better prepared to meet the real test that is not yet trained. The criers on seeing buskers probably have more facts at hand than the college classrooms, but which of these is more able to cope with new and vital issues, to deal with bigger problems?

CRITICISES LIT ARTICLE
Junior Resents Attack on Modern Litterature
To the Editor of the Princetonian.
Sir—There appears in the current issue of the Annian the following article, an attack on modern literature which I am unable to understand. It is called "The Thinking Man's House." Among the chief points of its attacks are:

1. Litterature is not to be taken as a serious subject requiring study and investigation. The author, in his criticism of the "serious" litterature of the present day, is convinced that it is not worth the time of serious students. He states that it is a "waste of time" to study such litterature. He feels that the modern litterature does not offer any interesting or valuable ideas, and that it is not worth the time of the student to study it. He also feels that the modern litterature is not worth the time of the professor to teach it, as it is not of any educational value.
2. The author feels that modern litterature is not of any educational value. He states that it is a "waste of time" to study such litterature. He feels that the modern litterature does not offer any interesting or valuable ideas, and that it is not worth the time of the student to study it. He also feels that the modern litterature is not worth the time of the professor to teach it, as it is not of any educational value.

The above is a brief summary of the attacks made in this article. However, I feel that it is necessary to point out that these attacks are not based on a thorough understanding of modern litterature. The author of the article seems to have a limited understanding of the subject, and fails to recognize the value of modern litterature in our society.

I hope that you will take the time to consider my comments on this article. I feel that it is important to understand the value of modern litterature, and to understand the role it plays in our society.

An Army Horse Stampsede.

Shortly before nine o'clock last Thursday morning, a horsemance, escaped from the corral of the United States Artillery School, and raced down the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks to the junction. Several of the horses started down the track to Trenton, and two became entangled in the trolley spanning a small creek near Lawrence Station. With the aid of several train crews, a wholesale round-up was made, and traffic, which had been delayed for over an hour, was resumed on the main line.

TRIANGLE CLUB ACQUIRES
NEW OFFICES IN REUNION

With the increased congestion caused by the large number of men out for the various managerial positions, the Triangle Club has moved its office from the University Store to the rooms of the Lot in North Reunion. Since the Lot did not need all the space which it formerly had, the board has transferred to the Triangle Club two of its three rooms, and will for the present carry on its business in the third.

The rooms which have been handed over to the Triangle Club are the main front room and the adjoining private office for the business manager in the back. Both these offices are being entirely done over, but during the renovation extensive work will be carried on in their usual. The office hours are now from 9 to 12 daily.
