ANOTHER MASS MEETING

The attendance at the mass meeting which was held in the gymnasium on Thursday afternoon was so large that an additional meeting was held in the same building in the evening.

ENROLLMENT LIMITATION

Now that it has been determined to limit the enrollment of the University to about 2,000 undergraduates, it becomes necessary to formulate a plan in accordance with which about 600 new students may be selected on the basis of merit from those who apply for admission to the Freshman Class. We understand that such a plan is being evolved by a committee of the Faculty, and that it is to be presented to the University in a few weeks.

CAMPUS COMMENT

Write Disappearance of Communications on Princetonian.

To the Editor of the Princetonian: Sir—It might seem a bit hard to administer any new blow on a character whose name is already mud, but one cannot help remarking on the strange view of some of our freshmen, who seem to think that if a student should unswervingly hold to his views in his work and in his speeches, he will be able to perform his duties no matter what they are, and that his views have nothing to do with the fact that he is performing his duties. The explanation which Diogenes offers for this disregard of the faculty is not to be found in the fact that he is in any way superior to his colleagues. The fact is that he has been exposed to the views of his classmates and has been himself, as a result, unable to think of anything else. For this reason, the Princetonian desires to show him that he is not so much in error as it seems. As a matter of fact, his views seem to be based on the idea that if a student does not have a certain amount of preparation and education, he is unable to do anything. The only way to avoid this is to make sure that a student is properly prepared before taking up any course of study.

ENGLISH COURSE DEFINED

Needs of the Average Freshmen Are Assessed.

To the Editor of the Princetonian:
Sir—The letter of "199" is in Saturday's Princetonian, though merely a statement and not an attack on any specific point in the Freshman English course, seems to require an answer.
"199" asserts as a "fact" that "comparatively few men take up an English course beyond the one required in the Freshman year." This "fact" is based on the conclusion, since more than 30 students are taking English this year, that "no one tells him how to write, he goes about speaking whatever he wants to say." This we deny. Both from our own experience and from that of others, these views and those con-

However, the students are unhappy in favor of the second general scheme of limitation. We cannot under any condition overcome the method of selection employed by some other colleges at present. We shall deal with these in more detail on Saturday's edition, and then we shall endeavor to outline very broadly a scheme of enrollment which we venture to put forward as an undergraduate opinon the subject, evolved after consideration of the facts.

THE REGISTRAR.

The Faculty desires to call the attention of the students of the University to the plan of graduation for three years of residence. Those who wish to employ it are warned that they should immediately give attention to fulfilling its requirements.
Work is to be done in the summer following Freshman year to an amount equivalent to a course of one year in some especially assigned subject. The student must choose before the end of Freshman year the department in which he wishes to enroll himself, and he must obtain from the authorities of that department an assigned field of work for the coming summer. The work is to be reviewed by the department concerned on the basis of written reports and possible, by a special examination at the end of the vacation. The subject of this work will also be dealt with in the comprehensive examination held the following year. The department who proposes to try the three year basis of graduation must submit a statement of studies authorized by the department of his choice or the division of his chosen department in the next two years.

The other features of the plan require first to see off. It is a light and positive advice and it is not likely that the plan will be made in the catalogue.
